Small Changes, Big Impact
Workshop

Monday, October 16, 12pm-2pm
Humanities 348

Based on the research and techniques outlined by James Lang in his book Small Teaching: Everyday Lessons From the Science of Learning (2016) this workshop will focus on small-scale activities instructors may use in order to guide students towards understanding and critically engaging with course materials. These small interventions can be implemented at any point during the quarter and are designed to be adaptable across disciplinary fields.

This workshop is part of a series that will be offered by the EPIC Program throughout the year and will specifically address strategies to help undergraduate student instruction in the Humanities. The workshop will be led by Dr. Lisa Felipe, Director of the EPIC Program.

We will serve a continental breakfast for the open house and a lunch for the workshop.

Please RSVP by Friday, October 13:
